Jury Comments

First Prize | 65658

"The jury appreciated the project's intention to minimize interventions on the site and the lakefront, emphasizing a very sensitive approach that highlights the existing qualities of the place. There is only a single spatial extension, designed to harmonize with the restored main building as well as with the site itself. This decision is strong enough to generate the main strategy of the project which consists of relating the old and the new volume with one another and with the site itself. The presentation boards are visually attuned to the project, featuring appealing conceptual drawings."

Jovan Ivanovski - Ss. Cyril & Methodius University

"Really appreciate the minimalism, constraint and simple addition to complement the existing building with its modern voice. Subtle adjustments really sing with this submission including material choice and program alignment."

Mario Gentile - Shiftspace

"With a very simple architectural gesture, the project maintains coherence with the history and materiality of the place. Effectiveness with great sensibility!"

Nicolò Calandrini - Denara

Second Prize | 70168

"Sensitivity and creativeness combine in this enticing scheme. Connecting practically and spatially through modular ordering system is smart and enhances the relationship between new and old. Consideration of the context and simple and clear graphic communication."

Simon Kilbane - The University of Western Australia

Third Prize | 67228

"Ohrid Reframed breathes new life into Boris Chipan's modernist white cube, honoring its legacy while introducing contemporary design elements that promote social engagement. This project reimagines the site as a fluid, open environment, challenging the functional boundaries of traditional modernism by fostering spontaneous interaction. Instead of rigid geometries, dynamic linear forms blur indoor-outdoor boundaries, extending the architecture into the landscape and creating spaces that harmonize with Lake Ohrid's natural surroundings. By embracing flexibility and inclusivity, the project evolves the site into a vibrant social hub, integrating community activities, public gatherings, and urban renewal."

Yuqing Zhang - Reed Hilderbrand
